Regional Forums Set to Gather Public Input

BALTIMORE (February 10, 2020) – The Maryland State Board of Education (State Board) has scheduled several regional forums to gather public input regarding the next State Superintendent.

Working with search firm Hazard, Young, Attea & Associates (HYA), the forums scheduled by the State Board of Education will be used to help identify the characteristics necessary to help lead the State’s education system. The forums will be facilitated by a member of HYA and are planned for locations throughout the State.

Public input will also be solicited through an online survey. Information about access to the survey will be provided on the Maryland State Department of Education website once available.
